PROTESTS ARE ENTERED ON PAVING PLAN

Street protests engaged the attention of the members of the council most of the evening at their meeting held last evening. Proposed street work was the subject of discussion, and no action was taken on either the improvement of Ohio street, nor the improvement of Prather, Carleton and Key Boulevard. Both matters were laid over for future consideration.

When the time for hearing protest against the improvement of Prather, Carleton avenue and Key Boulevard came, a communication was read from the East Richmond Heights Land company, in which it was asked that no action be taken as it was found that the cost per front foot would be much greater than the original estimate of the city engineer and as the company had sold the lots with the understanding the street would not cost more than $7 per front foot, the company wanted to keep faith with their purchasers.

M. A. Hays appeared for the company and asked the matter go over for two weeks, so that he could get in touch with the lot owners.

INSANITY LAW GOES ON TRIAL

SACRAMENTO, May 7.—The fate of California's insanity law as well as the lives of two murderers will be at stake before the state supreme court here tomorrow.

William Hickman, murderer of Marion Parker in Los Angeles and Joseph Troche, slayer of Mae Lorenzo in El Dorado county will make their final appeal to escape the gallows.

Both cases involve the new law permitting accused criminals to plead "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Hickman pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity" and was found sane. Troche lost before a jury both on a straight plea of "not guilty" and on the insanity plea.

Emeryville Living Hell Says Pastor

While District Attorney Warren continued his attack on alleged vice conditions in Emeryville, and pastors heartily flayed the town from the pulpit as a "living hell of sin and disorder," protests were forthcoming taking exception to Warren's claims.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars adopted a resolution which took serious exception to Warren's accusation that all citizens were "patrons of vice and supporters of law violators."

From City Councilman J. P. Doyle, however, came an admission that he was running a card game, licensed by the city council. He declared there were card games for members of the club, but no gambling in any form.

Meanwhile 23 citizens of Emeryville have signed a pledge to give every assistance to Warren in his clean-up campaign. The pledge was contained in a letter to Warren, wherein the writers declared: "We neither affirm nor deny that Emeryville is the vice center of Alameda county, but we wish to make it plain that if such is the case it is not because of consent or aid from us."

William Carey, brother of Police Carey, denied he was arrested for conducting a disorderly house, but admitted having been arrested and convicted for living in such a house, which he claims had been his residence for more than 12 years. Carey laid his conviction to the tardiness of his attorney.

From the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church, Oakland, came this discourse from Dr. Frank M. Slesley: "Why should anyone doubt hell and judgement when it seems that Emeryville is fast becoming a living hell of sin and disorder?"

Location Of Warehouse Is Blocked Here

Eighty two residents made a protest to the council last evening against the territory bounded by Roosevelt avenue on the north, Sixteenth street on the west, Seventeenth street on the east and Barrett on the south, being used to erect warehouses.

This property is along the line of the Southern Pacific railroad, and it was the opinion of the members of the council that it could not be used for anything else but industrial purposes.

Just a week ago a permit was granted Carl Overas to erect a storehouse in this section. But as the protest had been filed, the building inspector was instructed not to issue a building permit, and the whole matter was again referred back to the planning commission.

Council Blasts Canal Street Closing Rumor

Canal street, that leads from Cutting boulevard to the inner harbor will not be closed, as it has been rumored for some time. It is a public thoroughfare and those having boats on the inner channel will have the means of access to them.

A communication was received from attorney J. H. Boyer of Oakland in which he urged that the council take some action so that those who had been using the water uninterruptedly for the past eight years should not be deprived of their rights.

City Manager McVittie stated there was nothing to do about the matter, as no one was to lose any rights as Canal street would not be closed.

He further stated the Santa Fe had ordered all people who were occupying their property to move, and the only person he knew that the order affected was Greene's boat house, and this was on the railroad company's land.

City Attorney T. M. Carlson will reply to the communication setting forth the facts.

The jury will be called upon to decide whether the remains of Mrs. Antoine are resting on the bottom of Carquinez Straits, or whether she still is alive and mysteriously missing. According to a reported confession made by Antoine, he sewed his wife's remains in a sack and threw it over the Carquinez bridge.

Laura Stovall, 18, who married Antoine a few days after the alleged murder of his wife, was in court.

It is expected that the principal witness against Antoine will be his two sons, Ronald 11, and Kenneth 9. Under the law of this state, Laura Stovall cannot testify against him.

Rumanian troops have dispersed 20,000 peasants, according to the news brought by travelers. No casualties are reported in this first major contact between opposing forces.

Official dispatches from Bucharest which were permitted to be sent declare the country is in turmoil and declare that the Premier intends to ignore the request of the national peasant party that he resign. He declares he will take all means to maintain order.

THE BOOK BALLYHOO

With all the reading that is being done these days and the surprising popularity of biographies and outlines and other non-fiction works, it is hard to understand why so much ballyhoo is needed to announce a new book.

One New York publishing house recently introduced a travel book just off the press by giving a gorgeous dinner on the Leviathan. Authors, reviewers, editors and booksellers were present. The author of the book gave a talk, and the book was launched into the sea of literature.

There was only one flaw in the program. When the party was over the guests had to go back on shore. One of these days an enterprising publishing company will send its guests on a cruise to the latest book.

Just where all this rivalry in giving books a good send-off may lead remains to be seen. There is certainly a possibility that the introduction party may become too fine for the volume presented. It is putting a terrible responsibility on authors.

The best equipment and ultra-modern writer of history or biography can have a well developed sense of smell for scandal.

It is said that German beer is now fairly flooding Paris, and we don't know whether this means that the war is finally over or that the fighting is just about to commence.

Affairs of the Heart and Your Marriage Problems

Patricia Lee

Patricia Lee answers questions relating to problems of married life. Names and address should be added to letters as a mark of good faith but will not be published. Readers who desire private answers should inclose a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of typing, etc. Because of space limitations it is not possible to print answers to all letters received, and readers who wish an early reply should take advantage of this special service. On account of the large quantity of mail coming to this department, about ten days should be allowed for a reply. Write to Patricia Lee, care of this paper.

Dear Patricia Lee—

I have been married ten years and have one child, 7 years old. My husband is in the habit of going with other girls. Two years after breaking up an affair with one girl he left my home, giving me an excuse his love for another girl. I followed them till I caught them at a beach. I told the girl I was his wife and made inquiries as to where they lived. I found that she lived with her mother and he boarded there. He keeps up my home and loves the baby. He tells me it will take two years for him to work this affair out. First he was in love with her and he is tired of her and is working to get rid of her. How can I trust him?—June.

Dear June: I should say there was no way to trust a man of the caliber that your husband seems to be. Any man who has a "habit" as pernicious and morally wrong as adultery should not be trusted or even tolerated. You could break up this last affair easily enough. It seems to me, if you were to tell the girl's mother the real facts about your husband. But I don't see what good that would do. He would probably find a new love just around the corner. If you want me to suggest ways to get your husband back, I'm afraid you've come to the wrong person. Frankly, I don't think he's worth getting back or wasting one moment worrying about. If you have the evidence, you certainly should get a divorce. As long as you are aware of the facts and keep silent you are condoning his fault. I think you would be helping him more if you showed him what you (and a court) think of his actions, although I doubt if there is any character or backbone left in a man who has always given in to his worst nature.

Q. When an engagement is broken after several wedding gifts have been received, what should be done with the gifts?
A. They should be returned.

How To Earn Money!

You can sell the articles you make very cheaply and still have a good profit if the materials you use are themselves cheap. Don't misunderstand me. I am not urging you to make anything that will not give good wear and good service. That is a waste of time and people won't buy it. But if you are smart, you can convert things like dishcloths, fine or wide mesh, are folded over for the handbag and embroidered with bright colors. A shell top can be added, or you can crochet a handle. They are smart and lovely and wear very well. For table runners use about ten dishcloths crocheted together with colored wool and with a design or edging of the same color. You know how inexpensive dishcloths are. And how expensive handbags and table runners are. Even if you sell these articles for a very small amount you will make about 100 per cent profit.

Ever since the World War I have been unable to work, having been wounded in France. I want to start a small clipping bureau. Is a license required and can you give me an idea what to charge?
J. S.

A license is not required for a clipping bureau, but they are hard to start on a small scale. Each customer would pay about $10.00 a year, if they were fairly well known.
C. M.

I am 18, considered good looking, and can sing. I wish to be a vaudeville actress, but don't know how to go about it. Does it cost much money to get a start?

It would depend on how much training you have had. If you think you can "put across" a song now, apply to some of the movie houses for work. This would give you some of the vaudeville agencies, too. Cultivate any individuality you have, and get used to large audiences, even if you have to sing for nothing for a while.

Please give me the details about cartooning. How to do it, where to get it, and in such a way that it will sell easily. Please tell me also what preparation to make.

No—you will be judged on the way you can play alone. Most of the theatres now belong to chain groups. I would apply to the large organizations first. You will find them listed in the phone book.

DADDY DUSK

Twinnie had just come through the long tunnel from China and was much surprised to find herself landing in a nice warm snowbank.

It was her own bed. But where was Lindy? And where was the Spirit of St. Louis?

"Lindy, Lindy," Twinnie called. "Hey, what's the matter with you?" Twin sat up straight in bed and looked at her sister.

"What in the world do you want Lindy? You've been making a terrible noise the last few minutes. You'll wake every one up if you don't watch out."

"Why, Lindy was here just a minute ago. We came from China together through the tunnel."

"You certainly are funny. You have been sleeping here all night only you must have eaten something to have all those dreams. Lindy never would come here. And anyway, he's not in China. I know."

"But he was," Twinnie protested. "He's still half awake. He took me to China with him, too, and then when we were on the balcony of the palace of the Empress we got sucked into the tunnel and came back home without the plane."

"Lindy took you to China with him. That's good. Haw, haw, haw and Twin went off into gales of giggles."

"Tell me another, Twinnie mine she said and then started giggling all over again."

CUTEST THING BABY'S EVER SAID
My neighbor next door asked me if I got the stale bread she sent in for the chickens. Before I had time to answer, up spoke my little girl, 4 years old, "Sure, mother got it, and made a nice bread pudding out of it." C. K.

Use with dye to that lingerie slides.

Even the best known cartoonist could not help you out, my dear E. B., unless you have talent. I'll send you the addresses of some schools for drawing, but the rest will be with you. Write to the dye company for the other information; the preparation depends on the dye you use.

I can play the piano or organ by ear quite well, and wonder if I could get in some picture theatre to play. Does one have to have a diploma or something similar to qualify?

No—you will be judged on the way you can play alone. Most of the theatres now belong to chain groups. I would apply to the large organizations first. You will find them listed in the phone book.

Vigorous Health

I understand that up to date doctors cure everything by food now, so please tell me a food cure for impotence. H. L.

Up to date doctors cure anything by any method. Only nature can cure. Food cannot be used as a medicine nor is there any special food which will overcome your trouble, because it is not due entirely to improper diet. The usual natural treatment in such a case would be fasting, a largely raw food diet, cold sitz baths, general exercise and complete sexual rest. Of course, tea, coffee, tobacco, alcohol and medicines must be avoided.

The only cure for any disease is to remove the causes. Eczema is merely a form of various elimination made necessary by an accumulation of toxins resulting from wrong habits of living. The usual natural treatment includes a fast or orange diet for up to ten days, followed by the milk and fruit diet. If necessary, but otherwise by a largely raw food diet of fruits, vegetables, nuts, buttermilk and small amounts of whole grain products. Sun baths or ultraviolet radiations and all general health building measures are also employed.

Why I Blushed
Sitting in a theatre I went to get a drink. Opening my bag I did not have a cent, so put in the slot for a cup. Turning to go back a young fellow handed me a penny and said, "Here, miss."

GLORIOUS BETSY
NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS
Sweet Springs Inn is the scene of an early morning duel over a miniature of Betsy Patterson. Her handsome French tutor, La Vert, wins the duel and the miniature from Patterson, who boasted that Betsy had given it to him. Strolling in the woods, La Vert meets Betsy, who has been wading in the stream on a dare. He is silent while she chides him for his unmanliness and lack of ambition. Returning to the inn barefoot, Betsy is scolded by her aunt and father for her unladylike behavior. She replies sippantly as her father tells her to pack her boxes.

"Willam! Did you hear that?" Miss Massenbird turned in horror to the Major.

"Here, now, we'll have no more of such talk, Miss," Patterson boomed. "There is nothing more to be said. Back to Baltimore you go. We leave the Springs today."

"I know, but papa, haven't I told you that packing ruins my dresses," Betsy coaxed. "And every time you vacillate like this, and my gowns have to be packed, it means that I have to order more, and that's just money out of your pocket."

"There, did you hear that, Ellen?" the Major questioned, sinking down into a high backed Windsor chair, his face scarlet, and looking as though his chubby cheeks were about to burst. "I vacillate. She says I vacillate!"

"Well, you know you do, papa," Betsy moved cautiously towards her father until she stood beside his chair. "Now don't you? In your heart of hearts you know very well I'll coax you, and then you'll have little unpack them again. Won't he, Aunt Ellen?"

"I do, indeed," the Major pounded his fist emphatically on the arm of his chair. "I shall not change my mind. This time my decision is final. I'll have no more of these rascally French tutors about—and no more running around the countryside barefoot. I haven't had a moment's peace since we arrived here. And this morning—disturbed at my breakfast—"

"Now, there, papa," Betsy beamed, and smoothed the brittle gray hair of her father. "I know that was the matter. You haven't had your breakfast, and you're just as cross as a bear. Aunt Ellen, you should never disturb father before he's had his sleep and his breakfast. It's very hard on his digestion—to say nothing of his temper."

"I disturb your father!" Miss Massenbird threw up her head with an air of having been highly mistreated. "It was you, Miss— you, who disturbed him. If you hadn't gone traipsing about, I never should have had to call him. I, indeed!"

"Now, Auntie, you know I didn't call him," Betsy turned with an assumption of innocence that would have completely disarmed any other person save Aunt Ellen. "I always like father to have his breakfast before I talk to him. Now, papa, she bent over her father as though she had just won his last battle for him. "You come on upstairs and Eph will mix you a lovely julep and you shall finish your breakfast in peace, and then we can talk about going back to Baltimore. She twined her arms about his neck.

"No child of mine shall accuse me of vacillating." He disengaged himself from Betsy's embrace, and sank back into his chair again, panting.

"I'll never accuse you again, papa," Betsy moved about in front of her father. "Just vacillate this time, and I'll never accuse you again—if you only do it this once. You're going to, aren't you?" She bent over her father and smiled her most provoking smile. "Can't you feel it, Auntie?" She reached out her hand and drew Miss Massenbird close to her father. "Don't you feel it, father, that funny, little wavy feeling—that gets into your heart—like this? I will!" She kissed her father. "I won't. I won't—I won't—I won't—there, like that. Now, you're both agreed. Don't you both just love to make me happy?"

"There, you know we do—you know we do!" The Major rose, puffing, to his feet and put his arm around his daughter. "It's all right, Ellen—we stay."

"Very well," Miss Massenbird heaved a sigh of relief, now that the battle was over.

At that moment Eph appeared, a sheet of envelope in his hand. "Major Patterson, de mail, de mail, come, sah." He held out the letter.

Patterson took them and ran over the address. "Well, I'm going to finish my breakfast," the Major announced, following Eph into the hotel.

"And I'm going to dress. Come on, Auntie, we'll find Mary," Betsy took her aunt's arm and led her to the door. "She must be almost finished by now."

CHAPTER V
The living room of the Patterson suite was fast filling with morning callers. The beaux of Sweet Springs were attesting to the far-famed popularity and the much heralded beauty of "Glorious Betsy." Bearing bouquets edged round with napier lace, they presented themselves at the door. High crowned hats piled up on the hall tables. Padded shoulders lent a contrasting slimness to many waists tightly encircled with gaily colored vests and darker coats cut short in front and buttoned closely about. Stenod coatsails swung gracefully against tight knees breeches. Eager eyes turned always towards the French windows that led to the balcony. Anxious ears awaited the slightest sound.

Standing apart from the others as though he patiently bided his time, Monsieur La Vert, too, waited. His black-clothed arm raised aloft, the low mantled piece, his dark eyes moved lazily over the room and returned to the open windows; now and again his lips parted in a smile as some wily wit, was handed about. But whether it was because of his position as tutor, or whether he was merely disinterested that he held himself so aloof, only he himself knew.

Then the midst of the general hum of talk there came a lull. All eyes turned expectantly towards the window.

"Ah, Mistress Betsy!" With one accord the greetings rose from all throats; figures bowed low; bouquets were extended.

"Good morning, gentlemen," Betsy Patterson lingered for a moment, slightly poised on the sill of the long, low window that framed as desirable a picture as Sully ever painted. Silhouetted against the bright sunlight, a golden glow that seemed to emanate from the rich red glory of the high piled hair softly outlined the symmetrical figure. It cast into eternal darkness all before her as though the sun itself had suddenly alighted on the earth and made black by contrast everything about it. Even Mary, pretty in her soft pink and white fairness, seemed only a part of the background as she stood demurely behind her lovely cousin.

But even as she halted there, Betsy glanced quickly about the room. Then she saw La Vert. She colored faintly, nodded, and turned quickly away. Stepping into the room with the grace of an Empress greeting her subjects. A short train of creamy white followed the tiny black shoes of soft kid that paced the carpet so daintily. A knee length tunic of dull blue, edged with a finely pleated ruffle at the bottom and the highest of high waists at the top, turned the large eyes to a melting blue. Long white sleeves, gathered into little puffs, fell into ruffles over the slender hands.

But Betsy's eyes were searching for the familiar figure in black, even as she talked, and when she glimpsed him, watching her she nodded slightly. "But I see my instructor," he here, she smiled, and waved the men away. "It is time for my French lesson. Must beg you all to excuse me, sir."

"Oh, just a few more moments— Monsieur will wait." "You have only just arrived." Everyone pleaded.

"No child of mine shall accuse me of vacillating." He disengaged himself from Betsy's embrace, and sank back into his chair again, panting.

"I'll never accuse you again, papa," Betsy moved about in front of her father. "Just vacillate this time, and I'll never accuse you again—if you only do it this once. You're going to, aren't you?" She bent over her father and smiled her most provoking smile. "Can't you feel it, Auntie?" She reached out her hand and drew Miss Massenbird close to her father. ## Supervisors To Seek Rehearing On Bus Permit

Instructing District Attorney A. B. Tinning to apply to the Railroad Commission for a rehearing on the application of the California Transit company for a permit to operate a stage line from Oakland to Stockton via Contra Costa county, the board of supervisors yesterday took steps to oppose the company's move to extend its service from Martinez to San Joaquin county even though it may entail a fight in the California Supreme Court.

Reporting to the supervisors today on a decision of the Railroad Commission of last Friday granting the company a permit to extend its service through Contra Costa, Tinning declared that he felt that if the decision was allowed to stand uncontested it would establish a precedent in other applications that the county might find hard to overcome. If the county's opposition is not pursued the supervisors and the district attorney feared that it may have an effect on the opposition of Beverly Gibson for permission to extend his Sacramento-Bay Point stage line from Bay Point to Oakland via the Tunnel highway.

LOVE QUEST LEADS HERO ACROSS SEA

The primeval lure of the sea, and the heroism of marines battling the elements, form the background for an amazing drama of love, hate and adventure in "Across to Singapore." Ramon Novarro's new starring vehicle at the California Theatre. The new Metro-Goldwyn Mayer production, a powerful saga of the clipper ships, is one of the most gripping sea stories in years.

Novarro plays the sailor hero of an amazing love quest that leads him over the Pacific, through terrific storms, mutiny, attacks by Oriental pirates, and other thrilling adventures. Into an amazing drama of human emotions, adventure and the clash of human will and the fury of the elements form a beautiful love story that runs through the drama as a central theme.

Joan Crawford plays the heroine, a New England girl thrust into the midst of an adventure in the Orient. Her skill at emotional acting is strikingly demonstrated in the new picture, and her beauty more than apparent. Ernest Torrence, as the hero's elder brother, dominates a number of powerful scenes and James Mason, as the sinister first mate, is a convincing player. Anna May Wong is a siren of the Orient, and Edward Connelly and Frank Currier provide some remarkable character work. Dan Wolheim and Duke Martin are convincing as sailors.

Much of the picture was filmed at sea on a sailing vessel, including a terrific storm, which fairly appals the audience by its fury. The picture is a masterpiece on deck and the pirate attack are amazingly done.

Other features include "Dead Easy," a Bobby Vernon comedy; "Star Shots," a screen novelty; and "Topics of the Day."

How To End Constipation

If you want to get rid of constipation for good, you must cleanse the liver of its stored-up bile and get it working right.

Remember, a torpid, lazy liver clogged with bile that keeps you constipated. This surplus bile poisons your whole system, causing headaches, irritability, yellow skin, sour stomach, gas, indigestion, dizzy spells or other disagreeable symptoms.

All that any ordinary physic does is to force a bowel movement without getting at the liver.

What you really need is a thorough internal cleansing with Plantax, which brings out all the accumulated bile and other foul secretions.

Plantax is a most effective liver tonic compounded from the juices or extracts of harmless plants—remedies from Nature's own laboratory. It acts in a gentle, easy way—no irritation or weakening of the organs. Large bottle $1. On sale at La Moine Drug Co. and all other good drug stores.

Nations Will Pay Tribute to Dunant on Whose Idea Red Cross Is Founded

(Oval) Jean Henri Dunant, who first conceived the idea of permanent national volunteer societies to provide relief in war and disaster. May 8th is the centenary of Dunant's birth.

(Right) "The Samaritan of Solferino," a painting representing Dunant as a volunteer Red Cross worker aiding wounded on the field of battle.

THE one hundredth anniversary of the birth in Geneva, Switzerland, of Jean Henri Dunant—the great humanitarian who gave to the world the idea and vision on which the Red Cross is founded—will be observed on May 8 in fifty-six nations. Twenty million persons are enrolled under the banner of the Red Cross.

The clash of the Franco-Sardinian and Austrian armies on June 24, 1859, on the plains of Lombardy, when 300,000 men were engaged in hand-to-hand fighting on a ten-mile front and 40,000 were wounded and dead at the close of the 15-hour struggle, created the idea in Dunant's mind.

While traveling in Lombardy, Dunant came, late in the day, upon the battlefield. He was "moved" by the dead and dying, and hastened to the nearby village of Castiglione, where he persuaded peasant women and girls to return with him to succor the wounded.

For days he labored in this relief work, until all were under shelter and medical aid given them.

Later he wrote his impressions of the semi-barbaric negligence of the wounded in a pamphlet "Un Souvenir de Solferino." It was printed in 1862. In this book, he urged formation of societies for the neutralization of wounded in war, of medical men and hospitals, and formation of units of nurses. He added, "these societies, by their permanent existence could also render great service at the time of epidemics, floods, great fires and other catastrophes; the humane motive which would have created them would instigate them to act on all occasions in which their labors could be exercised."

The principle suggested by Dunant in the sixties of the last century are today a part of the articles of the International Red Cross treaty and are the major task of the Red Cross in fifty-six countries.

The first international convention was held in Geneva in 1863, attended by representatives of 16 countries. It adopted resolutions to neutralize wounded, hospitals and medical personnel and for use of an identical flag by all nations to designate medical service in war.

A formal diplomatic convention in 1864 embodied the resolutions in the Treaty of Geneva. In 1881, under President Arthur the United States signed the Treaty.

Dunant lived to see a Red Cross society in almost every nation, and died at 62 years of age in 1910, in Switzerland, where he had lived in seclusion many years. In 1901, the Norwegian Parliament awarded him one-half of the Nobel Peace Prize.

GIRL SAVED FROM PLUNGE OVER CLIFF

A study in human emotions would be the psychologist's way of describing Columbia Pictures production, "Fashion Madness," which opened at the Richmond Theatre last night for a two day run. Claire Windsor has the stellar role and is supported by a strong cast including Reed Howe, Laska Winter, Donald McNamee, and Boris Slegoff. The production was directed by Louis J. Gasnier.

Miss Windsor has portrayed many roles, but never before has one fitted her as perfectly as that of Gloria Vane, the pampered and spoiled daughter of wealth, whose every wish has been gratified. To Reed Howe as Victor Redding falls the task of coming and teaching her to experience the more lasting emotions of life. Howe gives an excellent performance and wins new admirers as a combination society chap and man of great open spaces.

Laska Winter handles a circuit role in a finished manner. She portrays an Indian maiden, in love with her hero and willing to sacrifice her life for him. Her scenes with Miss Windsor are tense and show an ability to draw from other players the emotion desired. Miss Winter rises to her greatest heights in the thrilling climax at the mountain top when she stumbles and plunges over a precipitous cliff, dangling in thin air, caught in a sid rope.

The photography is especially noteworthy and the atmospheric backgrounds most picturesque. No matter what your tastes may be, or the type of a picture you prefer, "Fashion Madness," is sure to appeal to you.

Other film features include, "Monty of the Mounted," a roaring comedy; "Tenants of Marble Canyon," Topics of the Day; and Aesop's Fables.

L. A. Student At Columbia Suicides

NEW YORK, May 7.—Facing a brilliant career as a chemical specialist and honored as an outstanding student at Columbia University, Charles W. Meyer, 26, Los Angeles, drank a potion of deadly poison Sunday afternoon, dying almost instantly.

Reside his bed on a chair was the flask of deadly solution. Next to it was the glass from which Meyer drank his final draught after writing two brief notes, one of which read with grim sardonic humor: "This is my last experiment."

BREAKING DAM SENDS TOWN TO MOUNTAIN TOP

GREENVILLE, S. C., May 7.—Homeless hundreds marooned on mountain tops, hovered wretchedly today under the lash of a gale and the misery of tormented rain and chill weather.

Meanwhile, 30 miles from Greenville, the cause of the exodus, the eastern table rock dam, cracked and caved, threatening momentarily to go out and flood a fertile valley, 50 miles long.

The Greenville chapter of the Red Cross, learning that 60 families had spent the night on a rugged peak of the Blue Ridge without food and shelter, started an expedition to aid them. The relief party carried, food, tents and medical supplies, expecting to make its way up the mountain trails. Roads approaching the dam are impassable, and the whole Saluda valley was guarded by a posse of special deputies.

A two inch rain during the night left the dam slithering away gradually today. Engineers in charge pointed out that it had withstood a terrific pressure of

The big textile plant at Piedmont closed today. It was feared buildings and houses of employees, strung along the Saluda river, might be flooded before there was chance to escape. The hundreds of persons employed there were sent to higher places.

Buses meet every boat at Richmond pier for convenience of foot passengers for Richmond proper. (Buses operate from pier to 10th and McDonald, fare 7c).

Boats leave San Francisco and Richmond pier every 30 minutes all day—hourly service at night—last boat at 12:30 a.m.

FARES: Auto, 60c. Passengers in autos, 5c each. Foot passengers 35c roundtrip. Dining room on all boats.

PICTURES OF POLAR FLIGHT RUSHED HERE

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—Actual photographs of the takeoff of Captain Wilkins' epoch-making flight through the icy air across the top of the world have just been received here and released for publication.

These pictures, taken in the desolate Northland at the start of the successful hop of 2300 miles, show the Lockheed Vega monoplane, powered with a lone Wright Whirlwind motor, being tanked up with powerful oil which the tropical aviator explorers planned their faith. They show the blue and gold Richfield banner, which has become the insignia of motor fuel accomplishment, blazoned upon the body of the ski-shod plane.

But more than anything else these photographs, rushed to California by Captain Wilkins through his keen appreciation of the way the gasoline performed, disclose the utter desolation of the snow and ice blanketed region where the trans-polar aerial deed of daring was done.

Preceding the pictures came a terse wire from Captain George H. Wilkins and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson which told the tale. Their message read:

"Richfield gas served our Whirlwind splendidly during 22 hours Arctic flying in temperatures ranging to 48 below."

(Signed.)
WILKINS-EIELSON

The fact that Captain Wilkins used Richfield gasoline exclusively and that this is his third successive year of Arctic aerial exploration using this famous Pacific Coast "gasoline of power" is being widely commented on here by automotive and aviation experts as well as by the countless thousands of mere motorists who demand the best in auto fuels for their private automobiles.

They point out that, in flying from Point Barrow across the polar regions to Spitzbergen with but a single motored monoplane, the arctic explorers had need of a high powered and unfailing gasoline. So that Richfield, in doing the job successfully as the aviators anticipated, has hung up another victory to add to its collection of honors won at home and abroad on the speedways, highways, waterways and airways.

owners, and explain the situation to them, and it was possible the protest might later be withdrawn.

On the improvement of Ohio avenue, a protest was filed by George P. Mulholland, owner of 68 lots and Mary Nicholl, owner of one lot, asking that no further steps be taken in the matter, as the cost would be excessive and there was no demand for the work, as there were only five houses on the street.

W. T. Kearney, attorney for Mulholland, stated when the tract was subdivided the owner of the property improved the street.

Councilman Scott said the people on the street had asked for its improvement, telling him, it was impossible for them to go over the avenue in the winter time.

Scott contended the resident owners should be considered in the matter, and as they were willing to bear the expense, the work should proceed.

After much discussion, the matter was laid over for one week, so that the members of the council could inspect the street, and ascertain its exact condition.

WELFARE WEEK IS OBSERVED BY LIBRARY

The Public Library is observing National Child Welfare Week with a special exhibit of books on all phases of child rearing and training. The exhibit will be continued during the month of May.

Two sets of important technical books will go into circulation this week. They are eight volumes on electrical engineering and six volumes on modern shop practice, both sets being published by the American Technical Society. These works are not new to the Richmond library, but are up to date revisions of a well known and much used technical series.

Twelve titles of new fiction covering a wide range of subjects are among the new books for the week.

Three volumes of plays included Eugene O'Neill's nine act play entitled "Strange Interlude," also "Porgy," a play in four acts based on DuBose Heyward's story of the same name; and a collection of four plays by Serafin and Joaquin Alvarez Quintero, two modern Spanish playwrights.

Ever since the publication of Dr. Holt's "Care and Feeding of Children," Dr. John Watson, the "behaviorist," has wanted to write a book on the psychological care of the child which he holds to be as important as the physiological care. Here is his book which he has called "Psychological Care of Infant and Child." He has some interesting things to say on the fears of children; the dangers of too much mother love, and temper and tantrums.

The MacDougall Coffee shops are familiar to all people who know New York. In a book entitled "Alice Foote MacDougall, the Autobiography of a Business Woman," Mrs. MacDougall tells the story of how, starting with a capital of three dependent children and less than forty dollars in cash, she worked up a business worth millions in less than twenty years.

Two books in the interests of health are Stickler's "The Skin, Its Care and Treatment" and Dr. Montague's "Troubles We Don't Talk About." This latter volume discusses some of the bodily ills which many people neglect.

"The Chums and their 'How-How's'" by Rev. Richard Hassell gives brief talks on character building for young men.

The first sentence in Bassett Digby's "Tigers, Gold and Witch-Doctors" runs thus: "I am going to tell you about the biggest tigers in the world, and gold that vanishes and witch-doctors who dance in a frenzy in the dead of night." The book is the account of the author's recent trip in unknown Siberia.

A banker's views on our prosperity will be found in Paul Maxur's "American Prosperity; Its Causes and Consequences." Mr. Maxur bases his contention of prosperity on the undeniable fact that "the income of the nation is greater than it has been in any previous time."

The "Fiddler Crab" is so called because the male has on brightly colored claw of immense size, which, when he runs, he waves as if he were playing a tune on a violin.

TAYLOR STARS AS FORDS WIN 9TH STRAIGHT

The Moltoza Fords of San Pablo won their ninth straight game Sunday by defeating Dalton Brothers of Oakland, 2 to 0 in a snappy contest.

Doyle Taylor, star twirler for the San Pablans turned in a sensational game, sending 19 opposing batters back to the bench via the strikeout route and yielded only three scattered hits. Besides his brilliant work in the box, Taylor drove in the first score in the second frame by smacking a two-bagger.

The Fords counted their final tally in the third, when H. Moltoza singled and stole second, scoring on P. Moltoza's smash through the pitcher's box.

Rose, hurling for the Daltons, pitched a good game, with nine strikeouts and seven hits.

Hillier, hard hitting third sacker, started with the willow, getting three safe blows in three trips to the plate.

One Minute Movie Of Jack Delaney's Downfall

DELANEY IS CHARGED WITH BREAKING TRAINING FOR BOUT

Jack Delaney may be called before the New York State Athletic Commission to explain persistent rumors that he had broken training three days before the Jack Sharkey fight and entered the ring unfit to put up the battle the fans were entitled to expect for $15.50 tickets.

The commission, while convinced that the fight was honestly waged, intends to submit the report of Delaney's alleged break in training to a careful inquiry.

While unwilling to detract from Sharkey's magnificent fight, the commission will also probe the Broadway insinuations that have been made that the result was a matter of common knowledge before the men entered the ring.

The commission will seek to learn whether this advance knowledge was the result of reports from Bridgeport that Delaney had broken training or whether sinister sources were responsible.

However, the fact that Sharkey entered the ring as a 4 to 1 favorite dulls the latter possibility. A betting coupe always is planned with the short-ender as victor, for there is no percentage to a gambler in risking $4 to win $1. He will, however, risk $1 to win $4.

Whatever eventuates from the contemplated boxing commission probe it is safe to say that hereafter all fighters will be forced to rigidly adhere to the commission's ruling, which requires a headline fighter to finish the last five days of his training routine adjacent to the battleground. It also forecasts stricter adherence to the commission's practice of having a deputy commissioner examine the fighters days in advance to certify their fitness.

Johnson's fame as a smart manager is surely belied when he took it upon himself to warn McMahon that Delaney was not playing with his dumbbells and rowing machine.

He thus took away any value Sharkey's knockout might have had.

In my opinion Sharkey fought the best fight of his career and nothing should smirch his victory.

The knockout was clean and for a few minutes it was thought Delaney was seriously injured. Blood flowed from his ears, and the boxing commission physician was worried over his heart action.

It was common knowledge that Delaney's friends had advised against waging on the Bridgeport days before the match and in the lobby of the Garden the night of the battle.

This was responsible for the rise in the odds from 8 to 5 to 4 to 1. Natural quotations in view of the warnings.

The only other similar occurrence where the commission acted before a fight was when it ordered Joe Humphries to announce "all bets off" as Jack Britton, welterweight champion, and Mickey Walker, who won the title that evening, were sitting in their corners awaiting instructions.

The solons took such drastic action because the betting odds, approximately 7 to 5 in Britton's favor shifted to 2 to 1 on Walker in less than two hours.

Johnson claims that the day McMahon was booked to visit Delaney Joe Jacobs told Jess that Delaney was not going to work out that afternoon.

In truth, Jacobs was in Cleveland with Andre Routis the day in question.

Last Thursday, Billy McCann, Jacob's partner, invited newspapermen and McMahon to make the trip to Bridgeport to watch Delaney perform. McMahon was too busy and but two newspaper photographers accompanied McCann.

Jacobs, Delaney's manager, admits he lost all touch with Delaney last Friday and could not discover his whereabouts Saturday when he visited Bridgeport, called at Delaney's home and gym, with tickets the boxer ordered for the match.

Delaney's manager lost all track of him for three days and was relieved when the fighter finally arrived Monday morning.

Joe was peeved over the report that he had tried to sell Delaney's contract for $40,000. He absolutely denied the story.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal secretion and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking Nujol since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas, pain or griping. Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless. Good, clean, so easily absorbed, every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every drugist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

ERRORS LOSE CONTEST FOR LOCAL TEAM

Errors by Ambrose, shortstop for the Sannies, were responsible for El Cerrito's 7 to 5 win over the Richmond Sannies in a game played Sunday at the First street park.

Walter Peacock, El Cerrito outfielder halted the Sannies in their tracks when a ninth inning rally threatened to tie the score. With two men on bases, Huzefka smashed a hard hit ball to center field that was labelled for two bases and the ball game, but Peacock stabbed the pellet in the most sensational play of the game, cutting off the rally.

The Price of Safety

THE fire loss in the United States each year is in excess of half a billion dollars, and most of it is preventable. This astonishing waste is increased by the losses that occur from theft and other causes. Valuable possessions... stocks, bonds, photographs, heirlooms, jewelry, etc... are secure from fire and theft only when placed in a modern safe deposit vault. Safe deposit boxes in the vaults of the American Trust Company are fire-proof and theft-proof. The small annual rental is trivial when compared to the protection they afford.

EL CERRITO COUNCIL AWARDS PLUMBING CONTRACTS, HEARS PLAN TO APPRAISE VALUES

Contract for the installation of plumbing in city building to be used by the Boy Scouts at Kearney and Manila streets was awarded to the El Cerrito Plumbing Co. for $121.00 by the Council of El Cerrito at their meeting Monday night.

On the recommendation of Street Commissioner Peter Larson an ordinance was passed providing for the destruction of obnoxious weeds in the city within thirty days after the publication of a notice of the action of the council which will be made some time this week.

A representative of the James Stafford & Associates appeared before the council and offered to equalize the valuation appraisals in El Cerrito for $2350. This price is slightly lower than the one submitted a few months ago of $3600.

The council will take the matter under advisement and take action next Monday night.

Construction of a two room addition to the house in back of the city hall on Manila street, to make living quarters for the new assistant fire engineer O. A. Burnett, was laid over until next Monday, when an estimate of the cost of the work will be submitted to the council.

Fire Commissioner J. R. Beck stated that it would increase the efficiency of the department if Burnett lived on the premises and that the building was not being used at the present time.

Installation of the fire alarm signals now in the home of former Fire Chief W. A. Hinds to the home of the new assistant fire chief, T. F. Riley on Elm street.

Citizenship Is Subject At Meeting Of Richmond Club

Citizenship, Americanization and international consciousness were touched at the high spots of the program given yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Richmond club, when the members of the Cosmopolitan club were guests of honor.

C. C. Kratzer, chairman of the civic section was in charge of the day, assisted by Mrs. C. F. Draper, Mrs. C. M. McCullough, Mrs. J. E. Tarr, Mrs. Annie Bradbury, Mrs. Grace Stewart, Mrs. R. Lauffer and Mrs. J. W. Bumgarner.

Mrs. Kratzer, Mrs. S. L. Wilson, Mattie Chandler, extended words of welcome to the guests. Mrs. Wilson outlined something of the accomplishments of the civic section in its study of political science and international affairs. The section has just completed the study of Haskins' "American Government."

Mrs. W. E. Tuttle, president of the Cosmopolitan club gave the response for her club. The main address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. J. H. Graham, Alameda district chairman of citizenship for the California Federated Women's Clubs. She said, "We are citizens of the world—when we gain that consciousness we are indeed international."

Mrs. Graham, told of various discussions of interest at the recent institute of International Relations and at the adult education class at Mills College. She told of Dr. Boas' belief at the adult education class regarding the fact that immigration laws are unscientific, and stated reasons found by Dr. Overland during the class for race prejudice. The only reasons were discovered to be "Hand-me-down objections; inferiority complex and the idea of seeing the unusual in someone else."

Mrs. Graham believes that "we should become familiar with foreign art, literature, music, cooking, mode of living," she said that Americans should be ashamed to compel foreigners to learn things about their government that we because of indifference or negligence refuse to learn. She stated that American should not expect the new citizens to make voters when Americans themselves do little with their franchise.

Mrs. Graham read the outline of the citizenship department of Alameda district, which has been recommended by Mrs. W. W. Green state president, stressing law observance, study of political progress and telling of the citizenship bureau where clubs may secure information for their programs.

Mrs. Emily Astell, director of the Americanization class told of the things that are essential for every good citizen, moral character, admiration of the cultural and religion, and closely by saying that to be a real true mother, women see their own child in every other child of the world, thus bridging the feeling against foreign nations and aiding international peace.

The auditorium was attractively decorated with spring flowers and greenery by Mrs. J. Tcherassy, Mrs. J. H. Rumrill and Mrs. Grace Stewart, refreshment tables were held downstairs and a social hour enjoyed following the program.

Music was provided by Mrs. Zella Chapin who sang "In the Time of Roses" and "Russian Lullaby," and Mrs. Domenica Robinson who sang "Sylvia" and "Still as the Night." Mrs. J. W. Bumgarner was the accompanist.

The girls scouts, sponsored by the Richmond club will provide the program at the next meeting. On May 21 will be a regular business meeting, with reports of the Secretary.

Card Of Thanks

Although I was not elected at the school trustee election held last Saturday, the large vote cast for me was, I consider, a remarkable testimonial of the confidence the people of Richmond placed in me. The vote cast was a voluntary one, and I wish to extend my sincere thanks to those who went to the polls, and wrote in my name. I did not seek the office and the spontaneous efforts of people in all parts of the city to place me in office, is certainly appreciated.

W. V. KELTZ.

DEPUTY HURT IN ROW AFTER AUTO WRECK

Struck on the head with a blunt instrument, W. J. Dermody, 58, foreman of the machine shop at the Colwell Cement works and a deputy sheriff, is in the county hospital with scalp wounds, which he says were inflicted in a fight in Mitchell canyon.

It was a case of where Dermody got into a fight with a friend who sought to play the role of the Good Samaritan, he told Deputy District Attorney J. H. Hoy.

A party of a dozen men started in automobiles from Colwell to Mitchell canyon, Dermody said. Dermody lost control of his car and it shot off the road into a ditch. A few minutes later, John Levak, a boarding house keeper at Colwell, who was also a member of the party, drew up in his car. He prepared to pull the Dermody automobile out of the ditch when an argument started. "I don't know how the argument began," Dermody told Hoy, "but I saw Levak brandish something that looked like an ax to me. I picked up a pistol to defend myself, but before I knew what was happening, someone struck me on the head. When I woke up, I found myself here in the hospital."

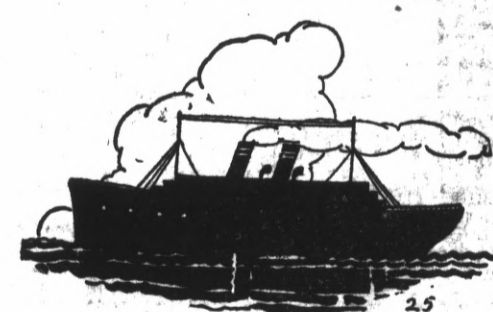

Hoy is conducting an investigation. Dermody said he would ask for a warrant for Levak's arrest.
